A Penny for Your Thoughts: The P.H. Morris Token

- Compiled by Brian Rounsavill -

Peter H. Morris, son of William T. and Elizabeth Hoagland Morris, was born in Plumstead Township. In his youth, he lived in Northampton and Buckingham Township and at one time was employed by the Frank Worthington clothing store in Doylestown. Morris started in business in 1892, keeping a general store in Richboro, until 1895, when he opened a clothing store in Newtown at the corner of State and Washington Avenue. In 1906, he built the store located at 25 South State Street. By 1922, he had gone into partnership with his nephews, Morris and Clarence Savidge. In 1928, he retired because of ill health and the business continued under the name, Savidge Brothers.<sup>1</sup>

It is believed that P. H. Morris paid to have the aluminum token (pictured above) produced as an advertising gimmick to be used on the Newtown and Wrightstown Turnpike (Durham Road). There are two known token varieties from the Newtown Turnpike: one with Gate #1 and the other with Gate #3 stamped on them. It is assumed that there was a Gate #2 token issued, but collectors do not know of an example in any society/members collections.<sup>2</sup> At present, the Gate #1 and Gate #3 tokens are thought to be very rare, with only a few in the hands of collectors. It is estimated that only about 100 of these tokens were made. Aluminum only began to be used after 1893, so the tokens were probably issued around 1900-1905.

<sup>2</sup> The American Vecturist Association is a club founded in 1948 that has had more than 3300 members over the years. They collect and study worldwide bus, trolley, toll bridge, turnpike and even carousel tokens and tickets. Vecturist, from the Latin meaning "Passage Money".

The Newtown and Wrightstown Turnpike (Durham) Toll House was in operation from approximately 1870 to 1920, when it was originally located at this site at the intersection of Sycamore Street (532) and Durham Road (413). The toll house served as the headquarters of the Wrightstown and Newtown Turnpike Road Company. The section of the turnpike that this gatekeeper controlled was from the intersection of the routes now known as 532 and 413 to Wrightstown-Taylorville Road and 413.

Travelers paid at an "entrance" location and gave a token as "proof of payment" at the exit gate. When you entered and paid for a measured distance, they issued you a token for that exit gate and the token was collected there. This eliminated people sneaking on to the road at some place along the line and saying that they paid at the beginning. When the road closed in 1920, all the tokens held by the company were probably destroyed.

It is believed that Morris may have given these tokens to customers who bought a suit or a pair of shoes at his store. Similarly today, merchants or doctors often provide free parking by validating parking tickets for customers or patients.<sup>3</sup> Currently, there are less than three of each of these tokens known to the transportation token collecting fraternity. The ones that survived were probably in the hands of people who did not use them prior to the toll-road closing. At their current level of rarity, these tokens are worth several hundred dollars each. However, as more are discovered, the value will drop. Anyone with more information about these tokens, please contact Brian Rounsavill.

The Last Will and Testament of Edward Hicks (1780-1849)

*Edward Hicks Portrait by Thomas Hicks, 1836.

I, Edward Hicks, of the borough of Newtown, Bucks County, Penna., Being considerably advanced in life... and after having enjoyed my share of happiness and as many of the blessings and comforts of this world, as most individuals (graciously meted out to me by a kind Providence) think it right to endeavor to make the family I leave behind (who are very near and dear to me) as comfortable as the nature of the case, and my little estate, will admit of... I therefore make and publish this my Last Will and Testament, annulling all other, and former wills by me at anytime made.

In the first place, I direct all my debts – funeral expenses and will charges, fully paid out of my Estate by my Executor hereinafter named...

2nd, I then give and Devise to my dearly beloved wife Sarah W. Hicks (for the purpose of keeping my dear family together) All my remaining Estate, Real, personal and mixed of every kind whatsoever, during her natural life – and upon her decease, whatsoever may remain, of said Estate, I order, and direct to be divided into three equal shares; in such manner as may be thought just and equitable, by the arbitrators hereinafter named ... One of which Shares I give and bequeath to my son Isaac W. Hicks, and to his heirs and assigns – One other of which Shares, I give and devise to my daughter Elizabeth S. Hicks and to her heirs and assigns. And the remaining Share, I give and Devise to my said son Isaac W. Hicks in Trust nevertheless, for my dear afflicted daughter Mary H. Hicks – The interest or income of which: And such parts of the principal, as my said son Isaac shall think necessary, shall from time to time be expended, for her comfort and support, during her natural life – And upon her decease should any of the said Share, so held in Trust, remain – It is this my Will, that such remainder, shall be equally divided between all my children, Viz. Isaac W. Hicks – Susan W. Carle, Elizabeth S. Hicks & Sarah B. Parry, share and share alike.

Edward Hicks (1780-1849), son of Isaac and Catherine Hicks, was a Quaker minister, sign painter and folk artist, most famous for over sixty versions of his Peaceable Kingdom paintings. Born in Langhorne, his mother died when he was young, and Hicks was raised by David and Elizabeth Twining on their farm in Newtown Township. After an apprenticeship in Attleborough (now Langhorne) and an eleven-year stint as junior partner of a coach maker in Milford (now Hulmeville), Hicks moved to Newtown in 1811 with his wife Sarah Worstall and his children to go into business for himself. They moved into the Thornton/Hicks house on Court Street next to the Half Moon Inn. Hicks opened a shop in his back yard and carried on his business of coach and sign painting. Hicks was a central figure in establishing a Friends Meeting in Newtown. In 1821, Hicks built this stone house located at 122 Penn Street. He built his coach shop in the back yard and his paint shop above the carriage house, which adjoined his home. Edward Hicks resided in Newtown until his death in 1849. He is buried in the Friends Meeting burial ground; his memorial service on the grounds drew 5,000 people and was reportedly the largest funeral in Bucks County at that time.
